Right look will grab attention

PETALING JAYA: If you have had the same hairstyle for five years, you probably need a change as you might be getting less attention from your boss and the people around you.

“Having the same hairstyle for too long probably means you won't get noticed much. Maybe, that is why you are not getting that promotion,” said Wella Professionals' senior technical consultant Chris Chan yesterday.

Chan will be giving more such tips at The Star Learning Skills 2008 – Image Power Grooming Workshop on Aug 10.

A hairstyle must also match one's face and personality, he said.

Expert advice: (From left) Lee, Chan and Ang will give tips on the power of creating a good image at The Star Learning Skills 2008 session on Aug 10.

Image consultant and Chapter One Asia founder Wendy Lee will give tips in the “Colours and Managing One’s Wardrobe” session including visual slimming techniques and identifying colour categories.

Lee said wearing clashing colours was a no-no and advised men and women to instead stick to the basic rule – a one-colour scheme, of either cool or warm hues.

Estee Lauder’s education manager Audrey Ang will talk about face confidence and give tips on make-up and how to match make-up with fashion.

Three other speakers will present sessions on first impressions, poise and posture, and dining etiquette.

Participation fee is RM500 per person, inclusive of a gift bag containing Estee Lauder, Wella, Summer's Eve products and Robinsons discount vouchers worth RM200. They will also be given workshop and reference materials.

There will be a lucky draw with three Radley handbags from Robinsons as prizes. Robinsons will also present a fashion show.

The fee is inclusive of a four-course Western sit-down lunch and tea breaks.

Attendees will also receive a certificate of participation.

The workshop is organised in cooperation with Carcosa Seri Negara, Estee Lauder, Robinsons, Wella and Summer's Eve, in association with MCA's Lifelong Learning Campaign.
